

Christ's Church Aflame! Homiletical Commentary on the Book of Acts is not your typical Bible commentary. It is actually an extensive expository sermon series on Acts. A preacher or teacher could use this book as a resource to preach or teach through the Book of Acts, or he can use the many comments, researched topics, illustrations, and outlines as a catalyst for his own messages. I have written this series (which will be three or four volumes when completed) as a resource to help busy pastors and teachers in their endeavor to feed their flocks, classes, or study groups. It is my belief that the Book of Acts is an essential history of the early church, and is of paramount importance to the congregation that desires to function as God intended a New Testament church to. While not all of what is in Acts is prescriptive (meaning that God does not intend for every action or concept to be implemented in today's church), all of its content is descriptive, meaning that it describes to us what the early church was really like, what it faced, and how it responded to its culture and times. May God bless you in your intensive study of this wonderful Biblical book.
