A confined space is a place which is substantially enclosed (though not always entirely), and where serious injury can occur from hazardous substances or conditions within the space or nearby (e.g. lack of oxygen). Safe work in confined spaces - Legislation - Hypoxic environments - Resources.

What must I look for in a confined space risk assessment? Are there any exemptions from the Safety, Health and Welfare (Confined Spaces) Regulations? What are the hazards - What are the legal - What are legal.

Confined spaces in the workplace pose a significant risk of injury and death. Hazards in confined spaces can result in fire, explosion, unconsciousness. A confined space is a space with limited entry and egress and not suitable for human inhabitants. An example is the interior of a storage tank, occasionally entered by maintenance workers but not intended for human occupancy. Confined spaces are usually not designed for people to work in. They often have poor ventilation, which allows hazardous atmospheres to. "Confined Space" refers to a space which, by design, has limited openings for entry and exit, unfavorable natural ventilation which could contain or produce. Year after year, people die when entering confined spaces to carry out work. Confined space work is covered by an Australian standard: AS.

Confined spaces can lead to asphyxiation and poisoning and frequently results in multiple deaths.
