

The poet writes each one of these poems from her heart and from some of her own personal experiences that she might have gone through and each one is reflected upon a certain situation, whether it is one of love, joy, pain, hurt, deceit. Some of these poems will take readers back down memory lane when you were with that special someone or when you might have been dating someone who you loved or admired very much. There are also poems written by the poet which inspire and uplift those readers who are going through some bad trials and tribulations right now in life.

If you'd rather digest poetry in your hands and your head than through your ears, here are five contemporary poets currently writing astonishing. Contemporary poetry is usually defined as poetry written after the start of the 20th century (some extend it until the 1950s). The problem is that within the category of contemporary poetry we find many differences.

There's still time to celebrate National Poetry Month. Some poets only other poets can read; some poets no one can read. But that's not all there is to modern poetry; in fact, there are many poets who combine.

Instead of breaking out of the dusty tomes of Donne, we're celebrating National Poetry Month with writers who are still paying off their student.

Brian Blanchfield is one more terrifyingly good contemporary poet, like Bhanu Kapil, published by Nightboat, one of our most reliably incredible. Contemporary poetry. Sensual, soulful, vivid and enthralling, these 21st century poets are sure to ignite your imagination with their extraordinary verse.
