Not illustrated. 1854 Excerpt: ...the reply to a book written in praise of a solitary life, I have sent all about the town in vain to get the author, having very much affection for the subject, which is one of the noblest controversies both modern and ancient; and you have dealt so civilly with your adversary, as makes him deserve to be looked after. But I could not meet with him, the books being all, it seems, either burnt or bought up. If you please to do me the favour to lend it to me, and send it to my brothers house (that was) in the-Kings Yard, it shall be returned to you within a few days with the humble thanks of your most faithful obedient servant, A. Cowley. Sir John Langharn to John Evelyn. Crosby House, this 30th July, 1667. Worthy Sir, I presume upon your goodness, though a stranger, so far to trouble you as to make a double inquiry concerning Mr. Phillips, who lately was entertained in your Sir George Mackenzies .Moral Essay upon Solitude, preferring it to Public Employment, &c, 1665. family. The one how he approved himself to you in learning and behaviour, whom I had long known to be the greatest judge of both: the other where he is now disposed of, and whether in the liberty of receiving an ingenuous employment, if your character of him and my discourse with him shall encourage me to give him a call thereto. One requisite that I am commissioned to be assured of, is his ability of speaking ready and refined Latin; for as to his manners and regular conversation, there lies not a suspicion for anything in them unworthy of the sanctimony of your house, which hath long been venerated as the holiest temple of all virtue and ingenuity. I am sensible how far already I have trespassed upon your consecrated leisures, therefore, lest I should continue the fault, I ad...
