

In the late 1800s the Native Americans in the central plains states lost their land and home to the white invaders. Over a hundred years later a group of young Native Americans had a vision of that land being returned to their people. Then one morning the world awoke to hear the national news broadcasting that thousands of Native Americans dressed in their 1800s attire and carrying primitive weapons had taken control of the Black Hills area. They took a stand that they would not leave, nor negotiate; they wanted their land back NOW! This contains many true facts in this fictionalized account of what could have taken place in modern day times if Native Americans were to make a stand.

Feathers in the Wind The story of the feathers of the wind is a folk tale I heard long ago. One day a woman was spreading gossip about another villager, later on.

10 Dec - 5 min - Uploaded by Adira Kessler Gossip hurts. It doesn't matter what has been said, it's the fact that it was said. Background for Feathers in the Wind - The Evil of Gossiping, Talebearing, and As soon as you get well, go pluck the feathers from a black chicken and put. His good name and his reputation were gone with the wind. Then he ordered the man: "Now bring me back all the feathers, and stuff them back in your pillow. Open the pillow and release the feathers on the wind. Then When he came back, the rabbi said, Now, go gather all the feathers released from the pillow. .
