

Grip of Fear is a story of two people who struggled to overcome the effects of abusive fathers. Jean and James met by chance while waiting in a pharmacy. They struck up a conversation and discovered they had something in common: they were both victims of child abuse. They met again a week later and began their conversations and found many parallels and realized there must be millions of people just like them with the same kind of story. Over the months to follow, they began writing a book together. They hope Grip of Fear will encourage others who suffer with the scars from their childhood.
