

Missions in the Life of Christ is the first installment of a series of books that look at the importance of missions in the teaching and life of the early church. The series represents studies and commentaries on key passages and how they inform us about the importance of God's mission to the world, our responsibility to be involved in the mission of God, and insights on how to be more effective in our thinking and activity as relates to carrying out our part in the mission of God. This volume is the second of two that looks at key scriptures related to Jesus' life and teaching in the area of missions. Each study includes additional materials to help the reader go further and deeper in understanding and applying the principles and ideas that are presented in each study.
