

267 pages, published by The Society for Study of Myth and Traditions. The story of a remarkable woman who devoted her life to the exploration of the Self-both her own and that of countless others who came to her for counseling. She was gifted with a deep grasp of archetypal forces and the ability to evoke them with luminous prose. In this posthumous book, her warm, intuitive words inspire and bring understanding. The first half of the book is her autobiography in which she weaves together dreams and symbolic images from her inner life with personal and world events. Her diaries form the second half, which further explore the mythic images and stories of her life's dream work. She focuses her attention on numinous realms of the psyche, the relationships of masculine and feminine natures, the liberation of the self from the bonds of the ego, and the alchemical mystery of becoming who we truly are. Drawing upon the I Ching, the symbolism of nature, and her favorite authors, she urges us to be aware: to listen to the small, still voices that illuminate our lives.
