

Excerpt from The History of Free: Trade in Tuscany, With Remarks on Its Progress in the Rest of Italy
The Committee of the Cobden Club publishes this interesting History of Free Trade in Tuscany because it proves clearly how great is the benefit arising from the practical application of Free Trade principles. But the Committee, while adhering entirely to them as enunciated by Sallustio Bandini, Adam Smith, Cavour, and Richard Cobden, does not feel itself called upon to decide who among present Italian Statesmen have remained faithful to those principles, and who may have, in a greater or less degree, infringed them.
