

So many books pretending to offer objective answers (101 Steps to Satori, Nine Golden Keys that Unlock the Gates of Wahoo, The Idiots Guide to the Essence of Utmost, etc.) can evoke a sense of failure. Dang! I read Tuesdays with Yahweh and Who Moved My Root Chakra? and I still dont get it! The journey is subjective, more like an Easter egg hunt than a 50-yard dash. Seeing as how we spend most of our time traveling, a book about how to enjoy the journey could be ever so useful. And fun. The Lonesome Wizard Boys, Merlin Bob and Hotrod, dont know any enlightened or self-actualized people. They dont even know any who know any. Theyre just a couple of down home seekers trying to make sense of the world and having a ball along the way. Rather than saying, Do this, they invite the reader to Consider this. Or, better yet, Play with this. This is a self-help book. As you know, the good Lord helps those who help themselves. So help yourself to some of these campfire tales.
