

Two adventurous cousins named Tommy and Jacqui are as close as any brother and sister, and share many fun times together. They live in a bayside town called Wynnum, near Brisbane in Queensland, Australia. The children are enthralled with the new tree house that Tommys father has built for them. The two eight-year-olds love playing in their hideaway, and are especially excited when they meet a family of kookaburras. The animals befriend the children, but most amazing of all, the kookaburras talk to the cousins, and teach them how to fly! Tommy and Jacqui have to promise never to reveal the kookaburras secrets. Because of their newfound powers, the two are able to save some neighbourhood children when they are trapped in a house fire. Tommy and Jacqui: Laughing with Kookaburras is a truly unforgettable childrens book. Violet Apted has been telling stories and writing all her life. My childhood was spent in war-torn UK going without what is mostly taken for granted today. Because of this, I see the world through my children and grandchildrens eyes and share their wonder. Now retired, she lives in Wynnum, Australia, and is writing more Tommy and Jacqui stories, as well as a novel about time travel.
